THE STORY

Riley Cote played 8 years of professional hockey including 4 in the NHL with the Philadelphia Flyers. His hard style of play eventually took its toll. He decided to retire from playing at the ripe age of 28 and committed to a life dedicated to personal development & optimizing mental wellness. Riley quickly recognized some very disturbing truths and felt the need to act and become the change. After reading the book Hemp For Health he began to understand different minor cannabinoids like CBD and how they could impact the mental health crises and the opioid crises in a positive way. At the same time, he also realized the healing potential of functional mushrooms. Bodychek Wellness was born out of necessity as a sustainable, plant based alternative to the traditional protocols that currently exist.
